

PayPal Customer Service & Troubleshooting Info for Online Payments

PayPal's process for accepting cards helps prevent the use of stolen and unauthorized cards. Because of strong security, sometimes it affects valid cards. Your card may have been denied if:

- The address on your PayPal account is not the same as the address on your credit card billing statements.
- The telephone number on your PayPal account is not the same as the one your credit card company has.
- The issuing bank for the card is unwilling to release the address attached to it. This only happens with debit cards and, unfortunately, such cards cannot be registered with PayPal.
